2. Ancestral File

WHAT IS ANCESTRAL FILE?

- Ancestral File is a genealogy database that contains lineage-linked names and other genealogically vital information, such as the dates and place names for the births, marriages, and deaths of millions of individuals. Ancestral File data is made up of LDS member-submitted information from around the world.
- The new site contains about 40 million names.
- It no longer displays information about people who may be alive.
- You can click to view a person in the FamilySearch Family Tree.

Why is it Valuable?

- A good place to start: You can save a lot of time by seeing what information others have already found about your family. Compiled records can usually be searched quickly and easily.
- A pre-1500 resource: There is significant duplication of research in the pre-1500 period. It is good to start such a search first by looking for your ancestors in Ancestral File since many of the pedigrees that were compiled by the Medieval Unit of the Family History Library are in this file.
- Complete view of a family: Ancestral File will allow you to see an ancestor's pedigree, his or her family (both as a child and as a parent), descendants with their vital data.

Pedigree Resource File

WHAT IS THE PEDIGREE RESOURCE FILE?

- Pedigree Resource File (PRF) is a growing collection of user submitted genealogies. It shows individuals' names; family relationships; and dates and places of birth, marriage, and death. No merges, corrections, or additions are made to genealogies submitted to Pedigree Resource File. Submit your own research to the PRF for preservation and to allow others to build upon it.

Some notes about PRF

- Contains all submissions made by users
- Has about 200 million records
- You can click to view a person in the FamilySearch Family Tree.
- The data is shown as individual submissions
- Submissions by the same contributor are not combined
- Sources and notes are displayed
- Multimedia links are not displayed

Benefits of the Pedigree Resource File

- There are many reasons why the Pedigree Resource File is helpful to a researcher. Here are a few:
- It is a safe place to archive your family tree.
- Each submission is stored in LDS Church's Granite Mountain Vault
- PRF contains hundreds of millions of searchable names
- Contributors often provided source notes and sources
