1. What is USGenWeb?

1. What is USGenWeb?

- loosely based group of volunteers; diverse people working on a variety of projects
- not a formal organization; not a commercial project
- idea behind it: to organize information first by state and then by county

2. History

- started out with the KY Gen Web with Jeff Murphy; decided that people do research by counties so he set up a site in KY by county known as the KY GenWeb in March/April 1996
- by June 96 all counties were set up and communicating by email
- then they drew people in around the U.S. who liked the idea
- it grew rapidly and was originally called the GenWeb Project but the official name is USGenWeb
- their idea was to enable people to go to each county for their resource aids

3. Goals and Objectives

- there are over 3500 counties and a page for every one plus a state page
- each county page shall have a query page
- also wanted to come up with some archive pages for people to access raw data

4. How Its Organized

- currently every state and county has a coordinator - over 3500 - includes county, state, city, DC , and Indian territories
- some coordinators have helpers who do lookups - a very large project
- some have less than one such as a coordinator for 10 counties
- county coordinator is who decides how much work is put in
- VA, NY, MO, and GA seem to be the most busy with hits

Quick Start

Here's how to start finding your way around USGenWeb.

The screenshot shows the USGenWeb Project homepage. At the top, there's a banner with an American flag and the text "The USGenWeb Project Land of the Free ... Genealogy". Below the banner is a navigation bar with links: HOME, ABOUT US, STATES, PROJECTS, RESEARCHERS, VOLUNTEERS. On the left, there's a list of states and territories. In the center, there's a section titled "Keeping Internet Genealogy Free" with a "Pick a State" dropdown menu and a "Site Navigation" section. On the right, there's a "County Spotlight" section and a "Project Archives" section. Annotations with red boxes and arrows point to various parts of the page:

- Navigate to your ancestral state from a clickable map. (Points to the "Pick a State" dropdown menu)
- Find out how to volunteer. (Points to the "VOLUNTEERS" link in the navigation bar)
- Access easily overlooked pages with tips and tools. (Points to the "Project Archives" section)
- Link to tables of contents for state sites, as well as the national search engine. (Points to the "Project Archives" section)
- Link to USGenWeb records projects. (Points to the "Project Archives" section)
- Go to a state page to explore places your ancestors lived. (Points to the "Pick a State" dropdown menu)

5. USGenWeb Special Projects

The USGenWeb Project was to be organized by state and county, with volunteers coordinating efforts to collect genealogy data for their selected counties or states. However, much genealogy data cannot be limited to a single county, or even a single state. So, USGenWeb started branching out and some more specialized "projects" were created to collect and disseminate data that goes beyond county and state lines.

- The USGW Digital Map Library - The United States Digital Map Library is a new project currently being developed by USGenWeb Archives. Their goal is to make available to genealogists, useful, readable, high quality maps. Here you will find both archival maps and newly made maps based on scholarly research. This project and all of its strictly volunteer staff are dedicated to free, online access for the general public.
- The Pension Project - The USGenWeb Archives Pension Project endeavors to provide actual transcriptions of Pensions and related materials for all Wars prior to 1900. Transcripts, extracts and abstracts will be accepted and files and will be placed in the USGenWeb Archives directory of the State and County of principal residence of the Pensioner.
- Online Census Images Project • Marriage Records Project • Archives Newsletter
- Obituary Project - The USGenWeb Archives Obituary Project was developed in April 2000. Newspapers have given permission to archive published obituaries to help researchers. RootsWeb has provided free access to the USGenWeb Archives since 1996.
- Special Collections Project - As the USGenWeb Archives grew, it was apparent not all submitted data fell into the standard state/county category, but covered multiple counties or states. The USGenWeb Archives Special Collections Project was developed in January 2000 to cover this special data. Special Collections also provides an entry page to scanned out-of-print books on family studies, historical books and various journals permanently stored in the USGenWeb Archives for free access. These books will be scanned and placed online.

What is the WorldGenWeb?

- The WorldGenWeb is a non-profit volunteer organization that is dedicated to the free use and access of public domain genealogical information. To further this goal, the WorldGenWeb uses Internet websites to create "local repositories" of information that researchers worldwide can access. Each project website (generally) will contain local resource addresses of county/country public records offices, cemetery locations, maps, library addresses, archive addresses, and association addresses including Family History Centers or other genealogical or historical societies, and some history and culture of the region. Other resources include query pages or message boards, mail lists, historical data including census records, cemetery records, biographies, bibliographies, and family/surname registration websites

Project Organization

- The WorldGenWeb Project is divided into 11 World Regions. Each region is divided up by countries and each country is divided into individual provinces, states, or counties (terms vary depending on administrative divisions).

Welcome to the WorldGenWeb Project

The WorldGenWeb Project is a non-profit, volunteer based organization dedicated to providing genealogical and historical records and resources for world-wide access!

Print
Email

About the WorldGenWeb

The WorldGenWeb Project was created in 1996 by Dale Schneider in an effort to answer the growing needs of genealogists world-wide who were trying to research their ancestors online. Dale's original goal (as is ours today) was to have every country in the world represented by an online website and hosted by researchers who either live in their own country or who are familiar with their country's resources.

Shortly after the WorldGenWeb Project debuted on the Internet in October of 1996 (it was first located on Dsenter.com) volunteers were recruited to host country websites. By the close of 1996 many of the larger countries in the world had websites online, thanks in part to the early success of it's sister project, The USGenWeb Project (which went online in June of 1996). Throughout the next year, our project continued to recruit volunteers and became firmly established as an online resource for international genealogists.

Project Organization

The WorldGenWeb Project is divided into 11 World Regions. Each region is divided up by countries and each country is divided into individual provinces, states, or counties (terms vary depending on administrative divisions).

Dumfries & Galloway Family History Society covers the three counties of South West Scotland - Dumfriesshire, The Stewartry of Kirkcudbright and Wigtownshire. We are a self-help group, established in 1987, run by volunteers, whose aim is to promote the study of family history. We do not contract to do research for others: we simply act as facilitators for researchers visiting our area who are doing their own research.

Currently we have around sixteen hundred members world-wide. Our Newsletters, published three times a year, offer members the chance to publish interests and queries, allowing other members to offer assistance. We have a well resourced Research Centre in Dumfries with a library, microfilm and microfiche of Old Parochial Registers, Census data, newspaper indexes and much more.
