A Guide to Online Genealogical Books and Libraries

A. Identifying Libraries and Their Websites

- There is no complete directory of libraries in the U.S. or world.
- www.publiclibraries.com is a list of libraries arranged alphabetically in the U.S. by state, then by town. It provides the name, address, and phone number and a link to their website if available.

B. Tips and Suggestions

(The following list is from the article, Catalog Shopping, March 2009 in Family Tree Magazine by Rick Crume)

1. Target catalogs to search

- First, identify libraries likely to hold helpful resources. Check www.daddezio.com/society/hill for genealogy societies in the states.
- Put the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints' Family History Library (FHL) at the top of your list.

2. Libraries where your ancestors lived

- Check libraries in towns where you ancestors lived using www.USGenWeb.com or www.Google.com
- Use www.publicLibraries.com and www.FamilySearch.org under the name of state.

3. State Archives and University Libraries

- For local, county and state records and history books, check state archives and historical societies.
- Most college and university libraries have large diverse book collections.

4. Union Catalogs

- Instead of repeating the same search in one library catalog after another, use union catalogs to scour the holdings of multiple institutions.
- WorldCat (www.worldcat.org) is the largest union catalog with 1.2 billion listings in more than 10,000 libraries worldwide.
- The Library of Congress' National Union Catalog of Manuscript Collections (NUCMC) (www.loc.gov/coll/nucmc/oclcsearch.html) has nearly 1.5 million entries for family papers, diaries, business records, and other manuscripts at libraries around the world.

5. Know What's in the Catalog

- Some materials aren't listed in the online catalog. Many libraries use separate databases, card files, or librarians' knowledge to locate microfilm materials, maps, periodicals, obituary files, city directories, and surname indexes and files
- Use "Ask a Librarian" on the website to find out the catalog's idiosyncrasies.

6. Understand How Catalogs Work

- Since the librarian enters the item in the catalog, you have to hit on the terms she entered. Different libraries assign different categories or subject headings to the same resource.

7. Formulate Your Search Carefully

- If you're looking for a specific book – search by author or title
- If you're browsing – use a keyword, surname, or subject search one at a time
- Use wildcards – “*” and “?”

8. Family History Books

- Search on the surname and the word family, e.g. “Campbell family”
- Be sure to do a subject search of the catalog for the name to get cross references to misspellings.

9. Local History Books

- Town and county histories are helpful even if they don't mention your family.
- Add the word "history" after the name of a town, city, county, or state.

10. Genealogical Records

- To find books of compiled gravestone transcriptions, marriage indexes, city directories, plat books, and other records, look for a place, e.g. marriage Cleburne Texas.
- To avoid missing something useful, start your search broadly with just a place. If you get too many hits, add genealogy or a type of record, such as "land."

11. Books By and About your Relatives

- First search on relatives' last names without including first names.
- Your relative doesn't have to be a household name or be the subject of a biography or unpublished manuscript.
- If the name is uncommon, search on just the last name; if common, add the first name or a maiden name.

12. Get the Book or Manuscript

- Once you find promising references in online catalogs, you need to get a hold of the materials.
 - 1) Check the web links listed on these pages, e.g. Google Books.
 - 2) Ask your library if you can borrow the book or microfilm through Interlibrary Loan (ILL), e.g. NGS lending library (St. Louis).
 - 3) Rent FHL microfilm through a local Family History Center.

12. Get the Book or Manuscript (cont.)

- 4) Contact the library to see if the librarian will answer brief research requests, e.g. “Ask a Librarian”
- 5) Look for used books on AbeBooks (www.abebooks.com), www.amazon.com, and www.ebay.com to compare prices on different sites. www.heritagebooks.com and Genealogical Publishing Co. (www.genealogical.com) are good sources of new and reprinted books.
- 6) Find out if a member of Books We Own (www.rootsweb.ancestry.com/~bwo) has it.
- 7) Check the library’s web site for search tips.

those who have given a heritage of worthy thoughts and worthy deeds. Among those who have stood as distinguished types of the world's constructive workers is the name of that great-grandfather, the late Colonel Abraham C. Truax, who carried on the benign influence in connection with the civic and material development and progress of the territory and state. The name Truax is ineluctably traced on the history of Detroit and the state of Michigan and figures on the pages of our national history from the early colonial epoch to the present time. In this connection the writer would repeat certain statements given in a sketch of the career of Colonel Truax prepared by him only a few years ago, as the words are held to be signally pertinent: "Strong men and true, gentle and gracious women, have represented the name as one generation has followed another upon the stage of life, and loyalty and patriotism have been in distinctive evidence, the while the family escutcheon has ever symbolized integrity, honor and usefulness. In America there have been many distinguished citizens to uphold the prestige of the name, and not the least of these was Colonel Abraham Caleb Truax, the revered Michigan pioneer."

The genealogy of the Truax family is traced back to patrician French-Huguenot origin, and heraldic records show that the family has been

Library

The NEHGS library, located at 99 Newbury Street in Boston's Back Bay neighborhood, is one of the nation's leading research centers for genealogists of every skill level. In it are housed millions of documents, manuscripts, records, books, microfilms, photographs, artifacts, electronic resources, and other items that preserve and reveal our history.

Our Collections

The New England Historic Genealogical Society has been collecting information about families in America for over 165 years. Our collections are international in scope and contain significant materials for Canada and Europe. Our 25,000 members access information through our library and website.

See a brief overview of our collections or a more detailed guide to the library.

Clark County Library District -- to Request a Book from Another Library

Request Items the Library Does Not Own

Interlibrary Loan service is designed to provide limited access to books and information not available in the Clark County area. It is not designed for text books or other items needed for an extended period of time. If you need an item for more than approximately two weeks, your best option to purchase that item.

First time users: Please read the procedures for requesting books before you begin and view the short video below.

Please choose one of the following request forms:

- Book, Conference Proceedings & Dissertations Request
- Journal Article Request
- Obituary or Death Notice Request
- Microfilm Request

On July 1, 2011, the Library will discontinue the mailing of ILL holds and overdue notices. After that date, notifications will only be provided electronically. Please add your email address to your account.
